PRINCESS MARY IS MARRIED

PROMISES OBEDIENCE

King George Gives His Daughter to Spouse
at the Altar

WESTMINSTER ABBEY, London, Feb. 28.—Princess Mary of Britain today became the bride of Viscount Lascelles.

In a wedding ceremony marked for its beauty and solemnity, the popular princess and the man of her choice, a British commoner, were married at 11:43 in the presence of an assembly of peers, commoners and visiting royalty. They left the abbey together a few minutes after noon.

Historic Westminster Abbey was a scene of unsurpassed beauty today as the princess, on the arm of her father, King George, moved down the aisle to the magnificent altar, where Viscount Lascelles stood waiting.

King George placed Princess Mary's hand in that of the viscount.

Princess Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary, as she was called during the marriage service, promised to love, honor and obey her husband, who stood proudly erect as the archbishop pronounced the concluding words that made them man and wife.

After the dean of the abbey had uttered his blessing and the collects, the customary address, the closing hymn and the benediction had been finished, the audience, led by the choir, sang "God Save the King." This was the only departure from the customary ceremony of the Church of England.

At 11:25 a thunderous roar of welcome marked the approach of the king and the princess. At 11:29 the bride to be was assisted from the carriage and entered the abbey on her father's arm.

Before the altar, the dean of Westminster read the opening address. A hymn, "Lead Us, Heavenly Father," was sung. During the simple ceremony, the audience, the Church of England prayer book ritual closely the bride and bridegroom were referred to as "this man" and "this woman," no mention of royalty being made.

The archbishop of Canterbury made the marriage charges.

REST IS BEST CURE FOR FLU

25 to 30 Cases Daily Reported by Health Department

The health department at the city hall reports that cases of flu are being listed at the rate of 25 to 30 a day, but that the malady is in a light form and in the majority of instances the patients are out again within a week. There are a few severe cases here and there, but none have been fatal so far.

Dr. H. V. Brown, who like most of the physicians of Glendale, is kept exceedingly busy attending cases of influenza, reports that the majority of cases are light, but a few people are suffering from heavy doses. In the matter of advice he says the most important instruction he has to give is to go to bed when you come down with it and stay in bed until you are recovered. The bad cases are those that have disregarded this advice and either kept up too long or gotten up too soon.

TOKIO, Feb. 28.—Universal suffrage for Japan was finally defeated after more than a week of stormy debate and parliamentary maneuvering by the Diet late last night.

Child of Nature Out of Existence Says James W. Foley

The child of nature passed out of existence many thousands of years ago and the progress of civilization developed a child of artifice.

Intelligent self-restraint is the index of the advanced human being.

This is the philosophy expounded by James W. Foley in "The Listening Post" this evening.

Henry James in his comments on the day's news speaks of the tragedy which came to a family in Santa Barbara where the gas from a heater snuffed out all their lives and he says that science would accomplish a wonderful thing if it could take from domestic gas, such as is a household necessity, the power to slay. Mr. James also speaks of an insurance clerk in New York stealing $120,000 all of which was found in a safety box intact; also of the case of a government employee sending letters to rich people demanding large sums of money, and Mr. James comes to the conclusion that the best way to get money is to earn it or go without it.

CITY RUBBISH CO. GETS CITY CONTRACT

Council Awards on Bid
Showing Saving of $700 Monthly

The members of the city council last night agreed to accept the contract of the City Rubbish company of Los Angeles for the disposal of garbage, rubbish and waste matter of the city, the contract to become effective March 1. According to Mr. William H. Reeves, City Manager, this contract will save the city about $700 per month on the cost of garbage collection and disposal. The contract was signed this morning by Mayor Spencer Robinson and a representative of the rubbish company. The contract signed this morning is to take the place of the one entered into with Martin and Lord by the city of Glendale for the disposal of the garbage and rubbish. According to Mr. Reeves this firm failed to live up to their contract which was cancelled and the city attorney, Bert Woodward, was instructed to bring suit for damages against the firm on behalf of the city.

Under the new contract the City Rubbish company has agreed to collect and dispose of all the city's garbage and waste matter. In addition to this the company will purchase the truck that has been used by the city to collect the garbage and will pay the appraised value of the truck. The city is to appoint one man and the company another to set a valuation on the truck.

According to Mr. Reeves, in the past the city has had to employ six men and one truck to collect the garbage and rubbish. The expense of the collection to the city was approximately $1500 monthly. The fees collected by the city for the service were approximately $600 monthly. Under the new contract the rubbish company will receive approximately $700 for the garbage disposal service making the fees charged by the city practically cover the charges of the company for collection.

MRS. FRANK AYARS MOURNS DEATH OF HER MOTHER

Mrs. Carrie Needham Passes Suddenly in Los Angeles

Grief has come to Mrs. Frank Ayars in the comparatively sudden death of her mother, Mrs. Carrie Needham, at the Clara Barton hospital in Los Angeles Monday morning, when she had appeared to be on the high road to recovery following an operation. Mrs. Ayars is her only child and funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at the Ayars home, 315 North Orange street, at 2:30, Rev. C. M. Calderwood conducting them, and the Jewel City company being in charge.

Mrs. Needham came to Glendale about three years ago speedily identified herself with the interests of her new home, becoming active in the Tuesday Afternoon club and the Congregational church. The board of education is meeting tonight at Intermediate on Wilson and Jackson street to receive bids for the new park and Glendale avenue intermediate. The property has been vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turk, the former owners, and if satisfactory bids are received, work can start in the near future.

The special sub-committee selected from the general advisory committee of 19, which has cooperated with the board, will meet with the board tonight. Francis Wilkinson is chairman and he will be assisted by Oliver Clark, E. H. Learned, and a few others who were called to assist them in determining what policy to advise the board to adopt in view of the inadequacy of the bond issue to cover the building program planned.

FARMERS' BLOC FIGHTS SUBSIDY SHIP BILL

Object to Paying Thirty-
two Million Dollars
Yearly

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—A great American merchant marine is necessary as the second line of the nation's naval defense, President Harding told congress today in appealing for approval of his ship subsidy program.

Such a merchant marine is also, he added, the highest agency of peace and it bears no threat and incites no suspicion.

President Harding incorporated in his speech almost bodily the recommendations of the United States shipping board for a direct subsidy amounting to about $30,000,000 a year, and calling for various indirect aids. All these he asked congress to approve.

Recognizing the widespread opposition of agricultural interests to a ship subsidy, which has been a political "bugbear" for many years, President Harding emphasized that shipping is no more a sectional interest than agriculture or manufacturing and that all sections of the country stood to gain by a thriving ocean commerce under the American flag.

He commended the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway project as a broad visioned enterprise.

Only by means of subsidies can the merchant marine of the United States be made great and the nation take the place on the seas which it held in the early days of the republic.

"The merchant marine is universally recognized as the second line of naval defense," he said. "It is indispensable in the time of great national emergency. It is commendable to uphold and maintain because it is the highest agency of peace and amity and bears no threat and incites no suspicion."

"And yet it is a supreme assurance without which we should be unmindful of our safety and unheeding of our need to continue growth and maintained influence."

Proposition Before
Business Men

At the regular weekly luncheon and meeting of the Glendale Credit association, H. W. Arbury, of Portland, Ore., representing the Community Service, Inc., addressed the members of the organization and briefly outlined for them the objects of the Community Service and its work. The organization's campaign for new members is still being conducted and that the committee on membership hopes to have every business and professional man in Glendale enrolled as a member before the end of the campaign.

monia Jackets and Articles Needed

The meeting of members of the directorate of the local Red Cross chapter, called together by the chairman, Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, and which took place at the Chamber of Commerce headquarters Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, was representative and enthusiastic, about a dozen being present.

The special subject of consideration was the call from the Pacific division for pneumonia jackets and the necessity of purchasing materials if a response was to be made. The vote to take up the work was unanimous, the money was appropriated and an all-day meeting at the home of Mrs. John Robert White on Orange and Lexington drive was set for next Friday, beginning at 10 a. m. The call for service is to all women, whether members of the chapter or not, and it is hoped that a goodly number of needlewomen will assemble at that time.

A report was submitted by Mrs. Arthur C. Brown, chairman of the local home service department, and there was considerable discussion relative to ways and means of helping the families of war veterans who are in need, the authority to act being left in the hands of Mrs. Brown.

The question of how many copies of the official Red Cross publication, "The Red Cross Courier," was canvassed and the directors voted to subscribe for a copy to be sent to the city library, and also a copy to the local press as the best means of disseminating Red Cross literature and propaganda.

Miss Bessie Barlow, Glendale's public nurse, told of her work which is supported in part by the Red Cross chapter, and directors voted to hereafter publish in the local papers her monthly reports as a means of acquainting the public with the work she is doing.

Epidemic Passes Over
Children According to
Supt. White

Speaking of the effect of the prevailing epidemic of "flu" on school attendance, Superintendent Richardson D. White says that the absence rate averaged about 10 per cent against a normal 5 per cent, which is not at all demoralizing. The epidemic appears to have affected adults more than children and this may be because the children spend more time out of doors.

"You can guess," said Dr. Muskrat, "that the squirrel and the beaver and the muskrats on their oak tree ark felt a whole lot better when they found the raven didn't mean to live off them and their children." That kind lady seal brought him his clam and caught him a fish besides, so it wasn't long before his old gizzard was so full that if a hopper-grass had roosted on his bill he couldn't have snapped at it. Though the middle of the Big Flood wasn't just the likeliest place in the world for a hopper-grass to be.

up the cages and pulled the canvas down to shut out the rain came from trying to hang on to my perch when his tarry old tub got to yawning in the storm. Or from fighting for a place where the water didn't leak in. Sitting out here in this nice warm sun is something like living again—not overlooking the pleasant company I'm having."

"I should think you'd have had plenty of company on Mister Noah's boat," suggested the lady seal. She felt most at ease with him because she was such friends with the gulls and the kittiwakes. The others couldn't help remembering how, in times gone past, there had been a few unpleasantnesses between them.

"Company," he squeaked. "Awk, company is the curse of that craft for sure and certain. 'Tis about all they have there.

Now and again, though, somebody would hatch a notion that would set your quills to clattering. "How interesting," purred the seal. "But how did you come to get away from there?" NEXT STORY—THE RAVEN REPORTS A SCANDAL.

A famous general was the guest of honor at a club dinner, and a club reporter, bubbling over with enthusiasm, referred to "this battle-scarred hero."

Imagine the general's wrath when the local paper appeared and he found himself alluded to as "this battle-scarred hero." Anxious to put things right, the editor wrote a correction for his next issue, and this is how it appeared: "What we intended to say was 'this battle-scarred hero.'"

Herbert Hoover Proposes Two Government Regulations

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Two new methods of government regulation of wireless telephones were urged by Secretary of Commerce Hoover in a speech opening the National Radio conference here today. Hoover said the conference should work out way length schedules for districts instead of individuals and allocate certain times of days when the air may be used by various wireless phone agencies.

"During the last four or five months the expansion of the wireless telephone has reached astounding proportions," Hoover said. "Our department estimates a minimum number of 600,000 wireless telephones is now in use and some estimates say a million.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

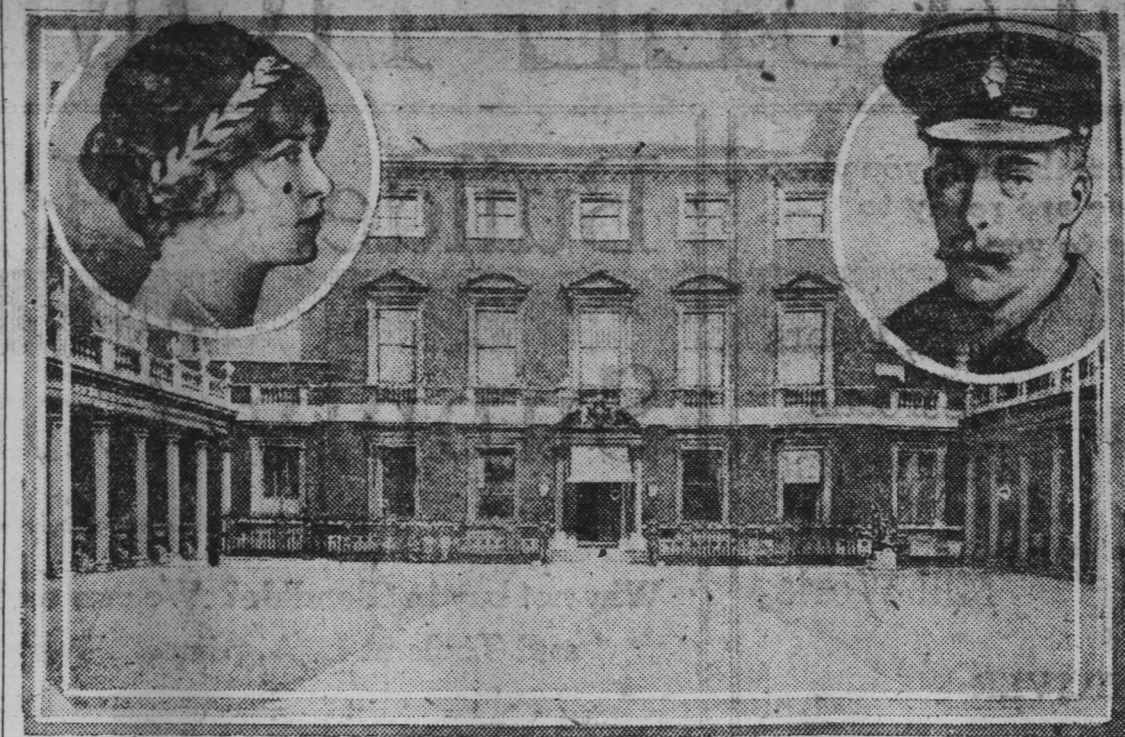

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wet's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small stand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once.

PRINCESS MARY, VISCOUNT LASCELLES AND THEIR FUTURE HOME

Here is Chesterfield House, the London home of Viscount Lascelles, to which he took Princess Mary after their marriage. The inserts show a recent photograph of Viscount Lascelles and the daughter of King George and Queen Mary.

PRINCESS MARY IS NOW VISCOUNTESS

lawful, wedded wife?" and on through the familiar service.

Then turning to the princess, who, with her father, the king, close beside her, was at Viscount Lascelles' left, he asked her the question, addressing her:

"Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary, wilt thou have this man to be thy lawful wedded husband; wilt thou obey him, serve him, honor, love, keep him in sickness and in health," and on through the prescribed ritual.

The princess responded:

"I will, in a firm voice and the couple repeated the rest of the ritual. The archbishop at 11:43 solemnly said:

"I pronounce you man and wife."

The enthusiasm of the crowds lining the processional route from Buckingham palace to the Abbey testified to the popular gratification at the Princess having stepped outside the ranks of royalty to choose a husband, an act, the rarity of which is shown by the fact that she is only the third daughter of a reigning British sovereign to marry non-princely rank. Her predecessors were Princess Louise, daughter of Queen Victoria, who married Lord Marquis of Lorne in 1871, and Mary Tudor, daughter of King Henry VIII, who married the Duke of Brandon in 1533. Princess Mary's aunt, Princess Louise, married a "commoner," the Duke of Fife, but her father, the late King Edward, was not on the throne at the time.

Every available inch of space in the Abbey was occupied, some 2,000 invitations being issued and these included the whole of the cabinet, members of parliament, diplomatic corps, high state and municipal officials, selected delegations of various important bodies, the tenants of the royal estates at Sandringham and Balmoral, and the Lascelles family domains, etc. In front of the sanctuary handsome gilt chairs brought specially from Buckingham palace provided seating accommodation for the royal family and distinguished guests, those occupied by the King and Queen being slightly raised on a sort of dais.

Customary Protest

The archbishop of Canterbury officiated, assisted by the Archbishop of York, the Bishop of London and the Dean of Westminster (the last named having previously lodged the customary time-honored protest against his spiritual superiors usurping his rights in his own abbey). The magnificent abbey choir, under the direction of Sir Frederick Bridge, was reinforced by the band of the Grenadier Guards.

The route from Buckingham palace was lined by regiments of foot guards, resplendent in scarlet and gold, with huge black bearskin headresses, and vast crowds packed the sidewalks, while in the spacious mall the crush was beyond anything seen for many years. The populace were in a holiday humor and heartily cheered the various royalties and high officials, but the appearance of Princess Mary was the signal for an extraordinary outburst of whole-hearted enthusiasm and loyalty.

Life Guards Escort

The royal bride, looking charming in her bridal gown of white silver and silver brocade, drove in an open carriage with her father, escorted by a glittering squadron of cuirassed Life Guards, and followed by a half-dozen carriages conveying the bridesmaids, members of the family, and high officials. Her mother had preceded her to the Abbey five minutes earlier.

The King wore the uniform of colonel-in-chief of the guards, out of compliment to the bridegroom. Through a forest of waving flags and handkerchiefs and a hurricane of cheers, the cavalcade proceeded to the great west door of the abbey, where the royal party was received by the archbishops and high ecclesiastical and state dignitaries. The band of the guards played the national anthem, while in Hyde Park a battery of artillery commenced firing a royal salute.

At the door guards of honor of the bridegroom's regiment, the Grenadier Guards, and the Royal Scots—of which Princess Mary is honorary colonel—were drawn up, and the aisle was lined by guards officers, the bridegroom's former battlefield comrades.

The Bridesmaids

The bridesmaids were: Princess Maud, daughter of the late Duke of Fife; Lady Victoria Cambridge, daughter of the Marquis of Cambridge, and Lady Mary Cambridge, daughter of the Earl of Athlone (all three cousins of the bride); Lady Rachel Cavendish, daughter of the Duke of Devonshire; Lady Mary Thynne, daughter of the Marquis of Bath; Lady Doris Gordon-Lennox, daughter of the Earl of March; Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, daughter of the Earl of Strathmore, and the 14-year-old Lady Diana Bridgeman, daughter of the Earl of Bradford.

Service Ordinary

As soon as the "sign contract" parties had taken their places at the steps of the sanctuary, the service commenced. It differed in no respect from the ordinary marriage service, and in answer to the archbishop's query, "Who giveth this woman, etc.," King George stepped forward and said "I do" like an ordinary father. There were no stunts or omissions, and Princess Mary promised to "love, honor and obey," just as countless millions of her humbler sisters have done through the ages. After the ring had been placed on the bride's finger and the final vows pronounced converting the Princess of Great Britain into Viscountess Lascelles, the venerable Archbishop of Canterbury delivered a short address and felicitated the couple.

There were numerous formalities, however, before this newly-married couple could escape, the most important being the stately procession to the registry, where the register was signed. Two registers were laid out on a small table, the regular Abbey register and the special home office register, in which all royal marriages are recorded. These were under the charge of Dr. Knapp-Fisher, receiver-general, who stepped forward, bowing, to offer imposing quill pens. Only the bride and bridegroom, King George and the Earl of Harewood, father of the bride, signed the registers today, but the remainder of the royal family will sign at Buckingham palace tomorrow.

"Adopts" Father-in-law. Then there was a slightly amusing little ceremony when Lascelles formally "adopted" his royal father-in-law. The bridegroom bowed low to the King and kissed the hand which was afterwards held out for a hearty fatherly handshake. He then advanced toward Queen Mary, kissed her hand and then her cheek; repeating the process with Queen-Mother Alexandra. After which he was permitted to kiss his own mother and father in more homely fashion, while the select little band of royal allies gathered round to congratulate the couple. The bridal procession was reformed, leaving by way of the west door, under an arch of swords made by the bridegroom's brother officers. Applause greeted their appearance, and the cheers were renewed as the newly-married pair entered the state carriage and, escorted by Life Guards, drove to Buckingham palace, where the wedding breakfast and reception was held. The court rule that the King must always leave first was waived today and King George watched the departure of his son-in-law and daughter from the Abbey steps, like an ordinary father.

At the wedding breakfast King George proposed the health of the happy pair. A monster wedding cake, the gift of the master bakers and confectioners of Britain, was cut. Princess Mary making the first cut with her husband's sword during applause.

The honeymoon will be spent partly at Goldborough hall, Knaresborough, the gift of the Earl of Harewood to his son, and partly in Italy. On their return the couple will take up their residence at Lascelles' London residence, Chesterfield house.

STANDARD OIL CO. CASHIER ROBBED

Bandits Hold Up J. L. Webb and Take $10,000 in Cash

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28.—Police and private detectives were today searching for four bandits who late yesterday robbed the assistant cashier of the Standard Oil company of $72,000 in checks and $10,000 in cash.

The money was taken from J. L. Webb, assistant cashier, when the bandit car had crowded his machine against the curb. The four robbers held Harry Grate, a guard, and W. T. Hennessy, chauffeur, at the point of automatics while they relieved Webb of his satchel.

The automobile used by four daring bandits who late yesterday robbed officials of the Standard Oil company of $82,000 in cash and checks, was found today. The car had been deserted on North Lake street, a 20-30 rifle and a 16 gauge shotgun, sawed off, were found in the machine. Police Berillion experts are processing the guns in an effort to reveal fingerprints.

MISSOURIANS ARE CALLED TO PICNIC

All who ever lived in Missouri are invited to meet for the great annual picnic reunion, all day Saturday, March 11th, 1922, in Sycamore Grove park, Los Angeles. Come as early as you can and spend the day with friends. We will have county registers and headquarters so you can find the old neighbors even with ten thousand present.

There will be a brief program opening about 2 o'clock, but the main purpose will be to have a good time. The president, Dr. E. W. Ames, will preside. We want to see all the tourists and visitors from the old home state as well as our residents so as to make this the greatest picnic in our history. Bring your baskets well filled and share with friends. Coffee will be served free to all who buy the souvenir badges.

Each one who learns of this picnic is asked to pass on the word. Further information may be had of C. H. Parsons, secretary of the Federation of State Societies, Continental National Bank, 901 South Main street, Los Angeles, Phone 10261, or of the president, Main 993.

INCOME TAX TO BE PENALIZED IF LONG DELAYED

Collector of Internal Revenue Issues Warning to Tardy

"Taxpayers have but a few days in which to file their income tax returns for the calendar year 1921. To avoid penalty the return, accompanied by at least one-quarter of the tax, must be in the hands of the collector of internal revenue or a deputy collector, on or before midnight of March 15, 1922," said John E. Carter, collector for this district, Saturday. "Returns may be mailed or filed in person at the office of the collector in Los Angeles. Payment may be made by check, money order or in cash. If made at a branch office, payment should be made by money order or check to avoid danger of loss in transmission to the office of the collector."

"Where in exceptional cases, such as illness or absence, a taxpayer is unable to make a return within the time prescribed, an extension of not to exceed 30 days may be obtained upon application to the collector. Such extensions will be granted only when, in the judgment of the collector, further time is actually required for the making of an accurate return. Application for such extension must be made prior to March 15."

"As a condition of granting an extension of time for filing a return, the collector may require the submission of a tentative return. Tentative returns will not be accepted unless permission is obtained previous to filing. A copy of the authority for filing the tentative return must be attached thereto when filed. Where a taxpayer files tentative return and fails to file a complete return within the period of the extension requested by him, the complete return when filed is subject to penalties prescribed for delinquency."

"If before the end of a 30-day extension granted by the collector an accurate return cannot be made, an appeal for a further extension must be made to the commissioner of internal revenue, Washington, D. C., with a full recital of the causes for the delay. The commissioner will not grant an additional extension without a clear showing that a complete return cannot be made at the end of the 30-day period. For failure to file a return on time, the taxpayer becomes liable to a penalty of not more than $1,000, and a further penalty of 5 per cent of the amount of tax due, unless he later files a return and it is satisfactorily shown that the delinquency was due to a reasonable cause and not to wilful neglect."

SUPREME POWER OF SPIRIT SHOWN

An interesting sermon on spiritual perception was preached at the First M. E. church Sunday by Dr. Clyde M. Crist. He said in part: "Elisha was just about to undertake an important task when his servant suggested the hopelessness of the situation. "Our task is a task that has to do with spiritual power. Knowledge is power. It is just as true in other spheres as in the spiritual. "If I had a mighty mechanical task to perform, more physical strength would not enable me to perform it without some mechanical knowledge. So it is with the spiritual. We must understand and obey the laws that govern the spirit. Destructive force can be bridled and used to bring about a great power in the right direction, as in the rushing torrents that pour down from our mountains or the mighty breakers that roar along our shores. We must understand and operate with the spiritual laws. We cannot go contrary to the laws of the spirit and expect gratifying results. "The picture in our text means that we are not going to create new laws but put ourselves in harmony with them. We must have the divine touch of God to see spiritually. One cannot look through the natural eye and see spiritual things. We must be born again. "The inward and real character of mind and heart determine what we see. Elisha saw through the spiritual eye, beyond the hosts which surround him. The same is true of the natural life. We do not all see the same things. What we see is limited to our own perceptive capacity. "Do we see the great army of God marching on to certain victory, or do you see the foes of your own soul crushing out the spiritual life? Do you see in men the power to become the sons of God? "If I see a struggle of flesh and brute force for supremacy, it is hopeless, but if I see a sincere and honest heart, in sympathy with God there is no question as to the ultimate outcome. Our hold on God and our faith in Him saves us. "Life is a battle, but not a hopeless one. We have many things to overcome. The inner miracle means an outward victory. Pray that your eyes may be opened in a spiritual way. Be good—fill a big place in a big way—do the big thing, and have an assurance in the heart that God is on your side and you shall be rewarded, victorious because you had sufficient spiritual perception."

A Prospectus and Outline in Detail for the Annual Glendale May Music Festival and the "CHILDREN'S CHORAL CRUSADE."

PART ONE: Community Music
Of all the arts and sciences where will you find one that is more inspiring, more uplifting, more intellectual, and more essential than music?

Now a straight question to the parents of Glendale? Where would you rather have your child spend his or her leisure time? In the dance halls, the pool halls, on the street corners; or AT HOME, practicing a violin, a cornet, the piano, or perhaps lifting up a childish voice in song? Can there be any argument? No. The child who takes up the study of music seriously, in addition to his or her regular educational course, creates and lives in an atmosphere undeniably better in every way. They acquire the home habit, the study habit, the habit of mental concentration, that is of great assistance in all other branches of educational development.

Give music today the same consideration that is given to reading, writing, and arithmetic. Divide a thorough course of study into grades from one to eight, with annual promotion. Start the students at the age of seven on any orchestral band instrument. At the end of the eighth year graduate them into a children's community band or orchestra.

Now allow and take away eighty per cent from the present school census of Glendale for unavoidable cause, such as: no musical ear, lack of musical intelligence; no application, change of residence to another city, etc., etc. The remaining twenty per cent would give you approximately seven hundred trained musicians at the end of the eighth year, available for community work. The adoption of this system would give the City of Glendale the largest boys' band and girls' orchestra in the world.

Now, just another glimpse into the future. Take these seven hundred young musicians and give them three years under an efficient director in orchestral work; and you would have symphonic material at the average age of eighteen.

This outline is practical in its application in the development and study of all orchestral and band instruments, with the possible exception of the oboe and French horn, and these are only necessary in symphonic work. All study would necessarily be in class. And basing the cost on an average class of fifty, the average cost would be ten cents for an hour lesson. Twenty cents for two weekly hour lessons; totaling $7.00 per year for each student. Should every registered pupil in our schools take the musical course, the total yearly cost would be around twenty-five thousand dollars annually. This is the only way to establish real community music on a permanent basis. The school feeds the community orchestra and band, both of which in turn feed the symphony. In this way you obtain an ever flowing stream of fresh talent and musical enthusiasm. An ever living monument to the organization, the co-operation, the musical unity of our city; and the result will be a musical community so far in advance of all others, that it would be rightly and justly entitled to the position which would be attained, namely: "Glendale, the Musical Center of the World."

ARGUMENT: The chief objection to this plan will be that because it is new and has never been tried; it never can be. The next opposition will come from your present school organization, and this can be easily answered as follows: If each and every individual in the present system had been so fortunate as to have attended school where this system was in operation, they would give the idea their unanimous approval and full co-operation in their would all be musicians themselves. There will also be some opposition from the several musical federations which will also have to be overcome; as the basic principle of these "federations" is not civic. It is State and national, and should Glendale dare to do anything original and place herself as an individual city in the spotlight, it might incur the jealousy and envy of Hutchins, Kansas or New Canaan, Connecticut, and thereby cause no end of trouble to the "musical trust," which is organized and established to prevent such original civic movements from succeeding. But fortunately the thirty odd thousand citizens of the fastest growing city in the world may figure that "Charity begins at home."

The vast and perhaps most serious opposition will be purely political. The professional politician is at all times opposed to any scheme or proposition that might possibly bring about complete harmony in civic and fraternal organizations; also in demonstrational beliefs. For Alas! the politician lives on discord and division—contest and strife. And it is a well known fact that harmony in any community makes poor pickings for a political pocket book. My next article will deal with the "Children's Choral Crusade." An annual event that can be made so successful that it will pay for this "musical education" for our children as well as give the City of Glendale a million dollars' worth of legitimate and dignified advertising annually.

At the Presbyterian church Sunday morning, Rev. W. E. Edmonds preached the last of four sermons drawn from Paul's letter to the Philippians, using as his text the words, "My God shall supply all your need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus." (4:19.)

Each of Paul's epistles has an expression peculiar to itself. A portrait of Christ is this epistle. Paul had seen Him, and he makes you see Him. This text is a wonderful one. Put it in your pantry and live on it. Some people look spiritually minded, starved; their spiritual garments are threadbare; they live on scant measure. Don't you want abundance? Didn't you hear last Sunday we could do all things through Christ? Cheer up! God is on His throne; we are heirs.

Old Paul in chains, in prison, stripped of all, persecuted and beaten, says, "None of these things move me." Now, to cap the climax, he says, looking away from himself, "My God is able to supply all your need." Paul's was an overflow of life, always flowing out into others' emptiness from the well within. What counts is when you can fill others.

Notice first, he says the source is "My God." It takes nerve to say that under such circumstances. Everything depends on how large your God is and how large a share of your life He has. Some people's God is measured by their own little size, or by their country. But have a large measure!

How much does Paul mean when he says "My God"? Look through a great telescope into the marvelous heavens. He made and cares for all that; taking care of you is a feather's weight. Paul knew well all the great works of God in the old Bible history, and the works of Christ while here in the flesh; and this God of power and love will supply all our needs according to His riches in glory.

But Paul, when he said "My God" meant the God of the resurrection, the Christ who could come through the stone tomb and the closed door of the upper room; the Christ who ascended to the Father's right hand far above all principalities and powers. If you are a believer, that Christ is yours. Never doubt He is able. Now, "according." This is the hinge all depend upon. A friend will give me money; all depends on what he possesses; his gift will be according to what he has. Now, when you multiply that by infinity—how much is God worth? Everything is His; He made it.

"Riches in glory."—It is all in glory whom where He gives us to supply all our need. In view of this, set your affection on things above, in glory. Our glory is the glory in the face of our Saviour. We are to have our place in His presence, in the city with walls of jasper and streets of gold; the Lamb is the light of it, and there is no sickness or crying. We would like to hurry to get there.

"My God shall supply all your need." Let us pass down the little buckets of need on the endless chain of faith and prayer, and they will come up brimming with His overflowing blessing.

NAZIMOVA SCORES IN 'DOLL'S HOUSE'

Nazimova, who can be credited with actually popularizing Henrik Ibsen, the Norwegian playwright, in this country, and who will be seen as Nora in the Ibsen classic, "A Doll's House," at the Glendale theatre today, has this to say of the character in which she won her greatest fame as an emotional actress:

"Nora is a real modern woman. That she didn't start a series of emotional affairs when she found she couldn't live with her husband under the humiliation of being a mere doll-baby, proves Ibsen's insight into the feminine character. 'No, not all women, it's true. Some poor, brainless little things, when they are thrown over by a lover or a sweetheart, just naturally turn to the easiest way left to them. For example, Dumas' Camille was such a woman. But not Ibsen's Nora. Far from it. She turned up her nose at getting into a snappy looking business suit and started forth into the world to discover the legitimate objectives for women's energies."

Until a fly can bite through his top hair to the scalp, a man is likely to think nearly as much hair as her ever had.

Truths in Enigmas

Error is the force that weids men together; truth is communicated to men only by deeds of truth. —Tolstoi (1828-1910).

Every man is the center of a circle, whose fatal circumference he can not pass.—Ingalls (1833-1900).

I wish to preach not the doctrine of ignoble ease, but the doctrine of the strenuous life.—Roosevelt (1858-1918).

REPORTERS RECEIVE A LESSON

Six Denver reporters dressed as hoboes, attended church on a recent Sunday. They went with the expectation of being snubbed, if not ousted. They were surprised in every instance by being received with courtesy, being offered money, and given a chance at jobs.

Doubtless the experience of attending church would have in itself been a novelty to most of the half dozen. City reporters do not, as a rule, go to church save as sent there to take notes on some address, or some notable occasion. Even then they are prone to regard themselves as a class apart, and whatever message it may be their duty to record, they are slow to accept as in any way applicable to themselves. This is not to imply that they are not moral, or that they are not religious, only they are schooled to be immune, while on duty, to anything but the sense of professional demands.

The outcome of the venture was most happy. Of course it could not be worked up into a sensational story with large headlines.

"Reporter Thrown Out of Church."

Visiting Scribe, Poorly Clad, Tossed

Down Steps by Sexton."

Something like that would have been fine for a paper desirous of getting up an excitement, and at the same time taking a reformatory whack at the laxity of churches in accepting the humble.

In the fact that the reception was kindly there wasn't an atom of basis for a display. But the lesson was excellent. Possibly it enlightened the public somewhat, and surely it illuminated the reportorial understanding.

MARRIAGE IN SCHOOL

A New York teacher, widow of 45, has married one of her pupils, a lad of 19. Despite this unique relationship the positions of the two in the school room have not changed. Still she possesses the right to penalize him for failure in his recitations. She may send him away if she catches him writing notes to girls. The boy has become step-father to her children, older than himself. Altogether an interesting scholastic and domestic problem.

In many cities married women are not employed as teachers. When one elects to become a bride, her name on the license has the effect of effacing it from her certificate. Her normal school training may be of value in other respects, but as to pedagogy, it has no meaning. This rule has been adversely criticized, and when applied without consideration for other circumstances, easily might work injustice both to teacher and pupils. But the particular type of marriage under consideration should be banned. Its influence on the morale of the schools could not but be injurious. It must tend to break down discipline. Regardless of all else, however, a woman of 45, the mother of five, who hasn't more sense than to marry a youngster not out of his teens, fails utterly to impress the belief upon observers that she has sense enough to have the training of the juvenile mind.

ADVOCATES OF CENSORSHIP

One of the foremost agitators in behalf of despoiling movie producers of their constitutional freedom, invited the city council of Los Angeles to listen to a sermon prepared by him on the subject. He indicated a mood to debate the matter. With courteous absence of comment, his invitation was filed.

Clamor for censorship of the movies has for the most part emanated from professional clamorers. This has been unfortunate in that it created a prejudice tending to prevent the improvements that friends of the great industry would be glad to see inaugurated. The producers themselves admit that some pictures are bad. They are not only willing but anxious to bring about the elimination of pictures of this class. The whole business started suddenly. It was in the hands of men quick to see the opportunity, but in instances not shrewd enough to make the most of the opportunity. They did not realize the breadth of appeal that the movies were to make in a few years. They set off in the wrong direction, and many of them met disaster. The construction of pictures, from the writing of scenarios to the final artistry fitting the film for display, is in better hands than at the beginning; engages higher talent, and serves a finer purpose.

That individuals, in a form of activity that requires many thousands of persons, have gone wrong, is totally without bearing upon the matter at issue. If there is a single profession that has not known its own black sheep, members of that profession probably would be too charitable to carp and harp upon the wickedness of the movies.

The problem will have no great difficulty in adjusting itself if given a chance. The apparently organized effort to destroy the movie picture business has the aspect of paid propaganda, winning the support of moral folk, and yet having no moral purpose. The fate of Arbuckle makes clear that the sins of the individual will rest upon the offender; as is natural they should do, in the film world or without.

ABUSE OF REAR ADMIRAL SIMS

The story is being told by enemies of Rear Admiral Sims that he is seeking advancement to the grade of admiral. That any naval officer of the line should regard such promotion as an honor, may be taken for granted. That any deserving of the distinction would tolerate a campaign to bring about its award to himself, is far from being taken for granted. Therefore the conclusion will be general, almost to unanimity, that the story is a malicious fabrication out of whole cloth. Such a view is to be sustained equally from the character of Sims and the characters of the individuals who for years have traduced him. They have involved themselves in disgrace, a circumstance that neither added to nor detracted from their reputations. To them a fresh smear of disgrace is nothing. It is akin to a new coating of soot on a sooty pot.

When the maligners of Sims seek to place the final and crushing stigma on his name, they assert that he was born in Canada. Silly as this attempt at aspersion may seem, it is the best—or worst—they have been able to do. Sims was born in Canada, his parents having been there on a temporary visit. The circumstance of his birth across the line in no manner impairs the integrity of his American citizenship, nor is it to be assumed that it affects his opinion as to England. It is to be remembered that the assaults upon him are inspired because he is respected by the English, and in a way ever courteous and proper, has let them know that the feeling is reciprocal.

Sims is welcome in England as a representative American. The door of English hospitality is closed to Hearst. Herein is believed to be the whole explanation of the gratuitous and nasty fight waged by the latter with the purpose of injuring the gentleman named.

MUSCLE SHOALS

Whether or not there is wisdom in entering into a contract with Henry Ford in connection with Muscle Shoals is a matter upon which congress must pass. There is no reason why that body should not obtain all the information available, which is more than the country at large is able to do.

Correspondents call attention to the fact that to accept Ford's bid would have the effect of giving him cheap power. There is nothing of record to show that any manufacturer could make better use of cheap power than Ford would be likely to make.

The fact that the work already done at Muscle Shoals cost vastly more than is covered by the Ford bid, is worth viewing relatively. The government spent many millions on wooden ships that it never used, and now is selling at a figure that makes the hulls practically a gift to the purchaser. War costs were not legitimate costs in every instance. There were cases in plenty in which contractors cheated the government shamelessly. They charged for work badly done or not done. Just how the work at Muscle Shoals figures in this respect, it is impossible to say. It is fair to say, however, that if the government expects to exact now, for war-time construction, the price it was obliged to pay when war ruled, and greed was having its innings, it will do no business of barter.

So far as appears, the question is as to whether Muscle Shoals shall go to Ford, under the altered terms of his proffer, or remain unutilized, the expenditure to date, representing waste. Or whether other bidders, less notable for big, successful undertakings shall be favored.

An agent of the Law Enforcement league of San Francisco asserts that as the effect of tasting the whisky he captured, he lost his lower teeth. Perhaps no incident since prohibition became a law has more markedly called attention to the bite, or kick, or corrosive potency of moonshine. The agent should have been more trustful of his sense of smell.

HANS AND IVAN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

In one of H. G. Wells' letter reporting the Disarmament Conference, he says:

"Britain, France, Italy and now the people of the United States have honored and buried the bodies of certain unknown soldiers, each according to their national traditions and circumstances. Canada, I hear, is to follow suit."

"So the world expresses its sense that in the Great War the only hero was the common man. Pious Hans and Ivan lie rotting yet in the soils of a hundred battlefields, bones and decay, rags of soiled uniform and fragments of accoutrements still waiting for monuments and speeches."

"Yet they, too, were mothers' sons, kept step, obeyed orders, went singing into battle, and knew the strange intoxication of soldierly fellowship and the sense of devotion to something much greater than themselves."

This is the last word upon the war. Whether or not you see what Wells is driving at, indicates rather accurately whether or not you understand what the war meant.

The war evidently meant something. No event is without a significance.

Perhaps we are too close to it yet to determine what that meaning is, and the correct conclusion can only come through the future historian and philosopher who shall have the right perspective in time.

But we ought to strive to know what the war meant. We have used the phrase many times. "It must not be that the war shall have been fought in vain."

What do we mean by "in vain"? Do we mean the dominance of Great Britain? Do we mean that we glorify the dead soldier because he has preserved the glory of France? Do we mean that he is to be honored because he stands for the humiliation of Germany?

Such things no sober judgment can conclude. The only rational reason that we can see so far for the war at all is that it should have had an important place in the program to stop war. That is, that it took so great a cataclysm to show war in its true horror and folly and induce men to turn away from it.

Fortunately, that is the turn it seems to be taking in the present world councils.

And these world councils will come to nought unless some way or other the mind of the world is turned not toward wreaking vengeance on Germany and Russia, but toward helping and rehabilitating those shattered populations.

The Unknown Soldiers, whether they lie beneath the Arc de Triomphe, in Westminster Abbey, or in unknown graves upon the field, are heroes because they show that a man can fling away his life for an ideal.

But they will not perform their true ministry to the world unless they help us find ideals that are more worth the price of life; ideals that have to do with mankind and not with the pride of contentious nations.

The Cynic said:
"People are always wanting something."
And the Philosopher said:
"True enough! Isn't that a fine thing?"
And the Cynic said:
"I am tired of people who always want something."
And the Philosopher said:
"What in the world would we do without the people who always want something?"

For it is the wanting of things that makes for effort.
For struggle.
For the digging things out of the mines.
For the passage of ships across the seas.

People wanting something.
And setting out to get it.
That is what Columbus did.
He wanted something.
He wanted knowledge and to discover a passage-way to the east by sailing west.
So he discovered a new world.

Somebody wants a handsomely woven rug.
And somebody over in Persia or somewhere weaves and makes it in a beautiful and enduring pattern.

Industry touching hands with desire across the world.
Because somebody wants something.

If nobody wanted anything what a dull world it would be.
If nobody wanted learning there would be no schools or colleges or universities.
No teachers or scholars.
If nobody wanted anything there would be no railroads.
No travel.

If nobody wanted amusement there would be no theater.
No development of great genius for acting.
No Booths and Salvini and Terrys and Irvings.
It is because people want something that we have growth.
Progress.

If nobody wanted anything there would be no music.

No composers and makers of symphonies.
No poems.
No paintings.
No Phidias or Horace or Sappho or Shakespeare or Bevenuto Cellini.

They all wanted something.
They wanted to do something beautiful.
And the great world wanted something beautiful.
So we got the development of genius and its expression in music, stone, on canvas and in sculpture and carving and painting.
Because people are always wanting something.

People want a lot of things.
At first food and drink and raiment and shelter.
Then light and color and beauty.
Music and poetry and painting and travel and learning and philosophy and religion and finally happiness.

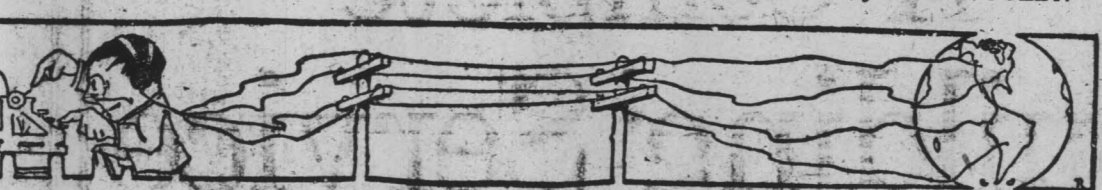

For all things that we seek are sought in the pursuit for happiness.

If people were not always wanting something there would be no green fields.
No cotton and wheat fields.
No vineyards and orchards and sugar cane plantations and factories and weavers and dyers and spinners.
The world hums.
Because people want things.

If nobody wanted anything there would be no commerce.
No banking and exchange and shipping and fisheries and lumbering and mining.
If nobody wanted anything there would be no preachers and teachers and scientists and astronomers and inventors.

Yes, people always want something.
And it is well they do.
Well that they have a wholesome desire to learn.
To make progress.
To live in comfort and with happiness.
It is well to want things.
Not to set the desires solely upon the possession of things.
But to have a wholesome and reasonable pleasure in sharing in the work and wealth of the world.

SONGS OF THE POETS

The Toil of the Trail—Hamlin Garland (1860—)

What have I gained by the toil of the trail?
I know and know well.
I have found once again the lore I had lost
In the loud city's hell.

I have broadened my hand to the clench and the axe,
I have laid my flesh to the rain;
I was hunter and trapper and guide;

I have touched the most primitive wildness again.

I have threaded the wild with the stealth of the deer,
No eagle is freer than I;
No mountain can thwart me, no torrent appall,
I defy the stern sky.
So long as I live these joys will remain,
I have touched the most primitive wildness again.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

CONFERENCE ACHIEVEMENTS

[New York Herald]

The achievements of the conference, now a thing of history, are of two kinds, those that are concrete and definite and those that are human.

The definite achievements are chiefly the abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese treaty, the scrapping of battleships with the ten-year naval holiday, the four-power treaty in the Pacific, the maintenance of the integrity of China, the open door in China, the elimination of poison gas and the restriction of the murderous unlicensed submarine.

The human achievements call for a cordial, frank, open discussion in the handling of international problems in conference with the purpose and determination to reach just, fair and unanimous conclusion; the human achievements initiate a new idea in diplomacy—directness, simplicity, earnestness that are of the essence of American feeling and American methods; the human achievements provide for friendly consideration by a conference of nations, in good faith, of all irritating international problems such as hitherto have led to war. Splendid as are the concrete achievements of the conference, however, it is a question whether in the long eulogies the human achievements of this Washington international gathering will not go further and mean more to the world than the definite items of accomplishment. It is our belief that they will.

APPRAISING ITS WORK

[Springfield Republican]

A critical appraisal of the work of the delegations which have completed their program at Washington cannot yet be undertaken and perhaps time is the only critic whose verdict matters greatly. But the President was able to give fully deserved praise to the conference for its patience and good will and for the large measure of success with which it has sought an agreement upon highly contentious questions. Nobody pretends that 100 per cent of success was realized, but if such ideal unanimity as that had been attainable a conference would hardly have been needed.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Whoever dubbed Ralph Obenchain "a man in a million" hit upon a happy title. For more than one of the type to enter into the composition of every male group of a million, would lower the average.

It is unnecessary to view at length the method which led to this characterization. But, briefly, Obenchain had married a woman who quickly threw him over for a lover whose attentions she began to accept early in the honeymoon. She got a divorce, apparently on the ground that her husband could have got one by requesting any reasonable court of proper jurisdiction.

The lover was murdered one night in circumstances that involved the woman in suspicion. Quickly the ex-husband threw up his job to rush to her side, the same side from which he had been ousted. He offered her his legal services. He is said to have offered her marriage. These were the odd activities that constituted him "a man in a million;" good thing for the million, at that.

But the offending on the part of Obenchain not likely to be forgiven, was that he consented to be the hero in a picture setting forth the whole series of sordid and indecent episodes. This was bad manners towards the public, a poor reward for its tolerance. It was a blow at the film industry, delivered just at a time when there is keen effort to cripple and discredit the whole scheme of picture production. No censor is needed for that film. What is needed is a concerted move on the part of all concerned in the welfare of pictures to have it denied exhibition anywhere, and to have it thrown out absolutely and finally.

Conditions afford the movie folk a chance to demonstrate that they cherish the reputation of their business, and are able to take care of it themselves.

The impressive deliberation with which the government moves along some lines, never would get it anywhere if similar absence of haste marked every department. For instance there's the case of a Spokane man to whom the government had owed $9.60 since 1895. He has just received his money, and doubtless is conscious of a glad surprise. He's a prosperous milkman now, and probably doesn't need the cash, but there's the principle of the thing.

Had the case been exactly reversed, and the citizen had begun in 1895 to owe his Uncle Sam $9.60, he either would have paid it long ago, or used up more than the amount in postage stamps in forwarding excuses that in the end would have been futile.

In a supposed gang of thieves, of the class known as bandits, just captured, are two young women. This is getting to be not uncommon. One of these is said to have been identified with a gang already broken up and equipped with striped suits. She was permitted to go free on the former occasion. Plenty of precedents may be found for letting her go again.

This is not according full equal rights. The females about whom a band of thieves centers, living on the booty, often inspiring murderous raids, garmented richly in stolen raiment, riding in stolen cars, have as good a right to be parked inside the penitentiary as any male could claim.

The latest shooting of a husband in this state seemed to have resulted from his refusal to get up in the night to procure his wife a drink of water.

While for a husband to be polite and obliging is generally wise, killing him as a penalty for failure in this respect does seem at first glance almost unduly severe. Sooner or later there will be a jury somewhere so constituted as to bring in a verdict discouraging the habit of domestic carnage.

A New Jersey woman reported to the police that she had been robbed of $50,000 worth of jewels, the thief invading her home as she sat at the table. Comes forward now a base fellow to say that the woman had hired him to stage the robbery, and paid a really decent fee for the job.

It is very disconcerting. Of course no real lady would plan a scheme such as this for the sake of collecting insurance on her jewels, and the female prisoner continues to assert with vehemence that she is a real lady.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

I'm not going to be as helpful to my friends in the future as I have been in the past. I can see that. One might almost say that I am not going to be helpful at all. Trying to boost a friend to a higher moral plane is just about as satisfactory an ethical endeavor as biting the end off a dynamite cartridge with iron teeth.

"You ought to treat that little wife of yours more kindly," I said to Harold Coons a few days ago.

It was true, too. That statement was as packed with veracity as an egg is with meat. Harold loves her—she loves him—they love each other—both love their children. But Harold gets up in the morning with a grouch that doesn't wear off until he has had his hot cakes and coffee and reduced his stenographer to silent tears. It comes on him again toward the end of the afternoon when he is tired with the day's work. But from 10 a. m. until 4 he is as delightful a companion as any one could wish.

"Whatta yuh mean, I don't treat her well?" barked Harold. So I went at it. I'm a well meaning, kindly, fat-headed pliff, I am. I told Harold just what other people thought about the way he barked at his wife in public, and how we had all seen tears start to her eyes after one of his acid jibes and how we had noticed that she watched him when they were together just as a horse does his master after that master has rapped him on the nose a time or two.

Now—listen to me. I meant well. I am fond of both of the Coonses. I am so fond of them and I have been such an intimate of the Coons' house that I thought I could do this sort of thing without breaking off our friendly relations. But I was wrong. Not only did Harold resent what I said about him but he took advantage of the opening and broke into a new line of thought about my own conduct. He said some wholly unpardonable things about the trick I have of leaving my own wife—

"That poor little wife of yours," says he— Alone for a month or so at a time when I am away on business. It wasn't friendship that inspired these remarks by Mr. Coons. It was poison, brass-tarnishing meanness. And I let him know just what I thought about it.

To top it all off Mrs. Coons cut me dead today.

COMMUNITY IDEA IN SERVICE IS PRESENTED

Credit Men Hear Recreation Plan Outlined by Organization Chief

Better citizenship through the proper organization and development of leisure time activities was the subject discussed by H. W. Arbury of Community Service, Inc., at the regular weekly meeting of the Glendale Credit Men's Association Tuesday noon.

"In this city of thirty-five thousand people, how many really belong?" It is a safe assumption that the majority of us have not found a happy way by which we may contribute something of ourselves for the welfare of the entire group. It is not unwillingness on the part of this "submerged" majority, but rather lack of proper opportunity. Leisure-time will not organize itself any more than our churches, our schools or our banks. Human nature would rather be sweet than sour, we would all devote some time to the general community welfare if given the proper opportunity and incentive. It takes organization with some one on the job from morning until night if we would surround this vital question of wholesome leisure-time opportunities and activities. It is up to the present community leaders whether we shall make an effort to develop more leaders and more opportunities. Community Service, Inc., will assist in setting up a local program of worthwhile activities that shall afford opportunities to every man, woman and child in Glendale to contribute something of their hearts and minds to the community as a whole in order that Glendale may be the best possible place in which to live. Community Service means better citizenship through a more constructive use of leisure. Community Service will create a spirit of friendliness and neighborliness with its non-sectarian, non-political and non-commercial program of activities. So, let's get together for:

If I knew you, and you knew me, If both of us could plainly see, And with an inner sight divine, The meaning of your heart and mine, I'm sure that we would differ less And clasp our hands in friendliness; Our thoughts would pleasantly agree, If I knew you and you knew me."

BRINKOP ACTIVE IN CAMPAIGN

The campaign of Walter Brinkop for the Republican nomination of office of State Treasurer is taking definite shape throughout the State. The reports from the larger cities as well as the smaller communities indicate that his supporters are very active in the forming of "Brinkop for Treasurer Clubs" and in a methodical organization of the voters of every Assembly District to support him. Of course, Brinkop is expected to have the strong support of all service men and women, as he has been most prominent in all matters pertaining to the welfare of those who were in the service during the late war.

However, owing to his connection with the banking business and the enviable record he has made in his profession, it is now apparent that prominent business men and bankers throughout the state are taking a real interest in his campaign. This is shown in the large number of written endorsements which he has received from men high in business and professional circles. Although Brinkop has a war record which makes him an outstanding figure in ex-service circles, he has made it clear that he does not wish this fact to enter into his campaign. He wishes to stand on his record as a financial man as he feels this is the only true recommendation a candidate for State Treasurer should rely upon.

SUMMER EASTERN TRAVELING RATES

Summer excursion rates from California, Oregon, Nevada and Arizona to the east are to be granted by the Southern Pacific Company, according to Chas. S. Fee, Passenger Traffic Manager. These rates are nearly the same as those granted before the war. The tickets will be on sale from June 1 to August 31, with return limit October 31, and will be subject to diverse route and stop-over privileges.

A few of the excursion fares from California to eastern points are given as examples:

To Omaha and Kansas City, $72; to Chicago, $86; to St. Louis, $83; and to Memphis and New Orleans, $86.

These rates correspond to the summer excursion rates from eastern points to California recently announced by the Southern Pacific Company. These latter tickets will be on sale from May 15 to September 30 with return limit October 31.

MR. PACKER RECOVERING

Mrs. Stephen Packer reports that her husband is recuperating from the prevailing "flu" epidemic, and that she suffered from the same complaint. She has returned to her classes in Glendale High.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gano of Spokane, Wash., were guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Burrer of 314 North Central avenue. Mr. Gano and Mr. Burrer are cousins.

THE CONSUMERS

I can't see why they're fretting About taxes as they do;
And of painless ways of getting More by methods that are new.
Why this crop of fretful rumors, Winter, Summer, Spring and Fall,
You and I are the consumers And we pay it after all.

Why should statesmen rant and worry, Why should experts scold and fuss?
Why this endless flare and flurry Over means mysterious
To find some new tax and lay it To bring in a little more?
We consumers have to pay it As we've always done before.

If it's ice or bread or butter, Milk or sugar, salt or tea,
I may fume and fuss and mutter, But it's all passed on to me.
I may vent my angry humor, I may fret, and scold and whine,
But I'm only a consumer And the burdens are all mine.

If it's oil or gas or ticket, If it's berth or ride or fare,
I walk right up to the wicket And they take it from me there.
What they tax or how they do it, And whatever charge there be,
May be camouflaged all through it, But it comes right down to me.

So whatever new tax rumor They may circulate today,
As an ultimate consumer I won't fret about or say
Any word against or for it, We won't let it give us pain,
As before we always bore it So we'll do it once again.

FARMERS' BLOC FIGHTS BILL

America cannot hope to compete in world trade unless it is equipped to carry its own goods, the President emphasized.

The term "subsidy" has long been hateful to the American public, he admitted, but the desire to build up a merchant marine has outlived all defeats. The President asserted that American indifference to the vital necessity of a merchant marine as a part of the national defense resulted in waste and extravagance during the war, costing at the time he came into office $16,000,000 a month and the "added humiliation on ships libeled in foreign ports."

Nevertheless, it was the American tonnage that was mainly responsible for America's stability to share in the world trade immediately following the war. "In all probability the losses we have sustained in our shipping activities were fully compensated to the American people in the saving of ocean freights in that period," he said.

Harding's recommendations, summarized, follow:

Creation of a merchant marine fund by diverting 10 per cent of all customs receipts, netting about $32,000,000 a year.

All tonnage taxes collected on both foreign and American ships to be added to the merchant marine fund.

Doubling tonnage taxes to yield about $4,000,000 annually.

One-half of all profits over 10 per cent to be added to the merchant marine fund. Creation of a $125,000,000 construction loan fund, to be loaned at 2 per cent for shipbuilding.

Deductions from income taxes of shippers an amount equal to 5 per cent of freight on goods imported in American ships to stimulate use of American bottoms.

More liberal depreciation allowances in income tax returns on ships.

All income taxes to be waived when the amount of such taxes is applied to half the cost of new ship construction.

Fifty per cent of all immigrants must be carried in American ships.

Creation of a merchant marine naval reserve to the maximum number of 5,000 officers and 20,000 men employed on merchantmen, receiving a maximum total of pay from the navy of $3,000,000 a year.

All government freight and passenger traffic to be on American ships where possible.

Army transport service to be turned over to the shipping board.

Constitutional trade laws to be extended to the Philippine Islands, requiring that all trade with the islands and the United States be by American ships.

Preferential rail rates on through shipments of American ships.

Coordination of rail and water transportation and development of railroad-owned steamship lines.

The President's recommendations were embodied in bills introduced today in the house by Representative Greene, Massachusetts, and in the senate by Senator Jones, Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Another fight in congress which may rival that over the soldier bonus is threatened by the ship subsidy message President Harding expects to read in joint session at the capitol today.

Warnings have already been sounded by the inland members of the agricultural bloc that they are against voting a subsidy of approximately $32,000,000 a year to be handed over to shipping interests.

"We are opposed to all subsidies on general principles," Senator Capper said today. "In the past I have been against ship subsidies of any kind. But I understand the President is preparing to present the problem from a new point of view and I intend to reserve judgment until I can study his message. There is bound to be opposition from many representatives of agricultural districts, however."

Some apprehension is also felt in administration quarters lest the advocates of the soldier bonus charge the President with inconsistency in advocating a $32,000,000 "bonus" for shipping interests while opposing a cash outlay for ex-soldiers.

Chairman Lasker of the shipping board explained today that the Harding plan does not contemplate an outright appropriation of funds but would set aside 10 per cent of all customs for a fund to be distributed among ship owners. Present custom collections total more than $300,000,000 a year.

In carrying out the ship subsidy program, American labor standards for seamen must not be lowered, Harding said.

LENTEN SEASON OPENS TOMORROW

It is expected that social activity will be rather quiet for several weeks to come. The Lenten season begins Wednesday and Easter Sunday is April 16.

In St. Mark's church the ladies of the Guild will hold all day meetings every Thursday to prepare for a bazaar they are to give the Saturday before Palm Sunday, or April 8.

The church is rejoicing over the announcement that Bishop Stephens will be here the Sunday after Easter for the confirmation class. He is a fine orator whom it is a privilege to hear.

CERRITOS P. T. A. TO HOLD MEETING

The Cerritos Avenue Parent-Teacher association will hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon, 2:30 o'clock, when refreshments will be served, followed by the program, which will include group singing by pupils of the third grade, of "Wee Willie Winkle" and "The Surprise"; recitation, "The North Wind," by John Beylick; an address on the "Adolescent Period" by Miss Densmore of the El Retiro home, and more group singing of "Pussy Willow" and "Babyland." Mrs. E. L. Adams is president of the association.

HIGH TO DEBATE PASADENA SCHOOL

The next league debate in which Glendale High will be represented will be with Pasadena High and the question to be argued pro and con will be, "Resolved, That the Initiative and Referendum should be extended to the Federal Legislature; Constitutionality waived." The date of the contest has not been announced but debaters are invited to meet with Coach Perkins Wednesday at 4 p. m. for preliminary discussion of the subject.

TUJUNGA WATER COMPANY ASKS AN INCREASE

Election for School Trustee Be Held in March at School House

The Haines Canyon water company, engaged in supplying water for irrigation and domestic purposes in Tujunga and adjacent territory, has applied to the railroad commission for an order authorizing it to increase its rates. The company claims that last year it sustained an actual operating loss of $3864.74. Its operating expenses are given as $20,978.70, and its revenue as $17,113.96. The company adds that these figures do not take into consideration depreciation or loss of interest on the investment, and declares that it cannot continue to operate without a substantial increase and readjustment of rates. The company believes that it is to the best interest of the community as well as to itself that the system be established upon an adequate financial basis.

At the regular weekly meeting of the school board held Monday night, Wilnot Parcher announced his intention to retire as president of the board and stated that he would not be a candidate at the coming election. This election is to be held on March 31, and a trustee will be elected to serve for three years; at the same time candidates for the high school board will be voted upon. Polls will be open at the school house from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. The present members of the Tujunga board are Wilnot Parcher, Jud Jenkins and Wallace M. Morgan.

The third meeting of the T. N. T. club will be held tonight in the basement of the church. This is the last meeting of which the opportunity to become charter members will be offered. Those joining after March 1, will be required to pay an initiation fee of $1 and go through the initiation ceremony. Charter members will pay an initiation fee of 50 cents. Plans for a hike and other entertainments are to be completed tonight. All young men of the community are invited to be present.

MAE MURRAY WINS IN 'PEACOCK ALLEY'

In "Peacock Alley," which began a three days' run at the T. D. & L. theatre today, Mae Murray does the most striking characterization of her career. It is a picture which to the natural interest of a powerful love story is added the attraction of gorgeous settings and wonderful costumes.

As Clio of Paris, the dancer, Miss Murray does the finest acting of any of her pictures. There is no artist on the screen can display gorgeous costumes to better advantage than the blonde star and she has a wealth of them in "Peacock Alley." Monte Blue in the role of the small town husband played the part of perfection.

In addition to "Peacock Alley" a special comedy, "Save My Child," a Tony Sarg creation, Kinggrams and "Fishing," a reel for sportsmen, are included. An especial musical score for "Peacock Alley" has been arranged by George Olsen, organist of the T. D. & L. theatre.

CREDIT ALLOWANCES AS PER EXPERTS

Credits allowed individuals are described by Masters and Egan, in some tax consultants of Los Angeles and Glendale.

"For the purpose of the normal tax only there shall be allowed the following credits," said Mr. Masters quoting from the law.

"In the case of a single person, a personal exemption of $1,000; or in the case of the head of a family or a married person living with husband or wife, a personal exemption of $2,500, unless the net income is in excess of $5,000, in which case the personal exemption shall be $2,000. A husband and wife living together shall receive but one personal exemption. The amount of such personal exemption shall be $2,500 unless the aggregate net income of such husband and wife is in excess of $5,000, in which case the amount of such personal exemption shall be $2,000. If such husband and wife make separate returns, the personal exemption may be taken by either or divided between them. In no case shall the reduction of the personal exemption from $2,500 to $2,000 operate to increase the tax, which would be payable if the exemption were $2,500, by more than the amount of the net income in excess of $5,000;

"$400 for each person (other than husband or wife) dependent upon and receiving his chief support from the taxpayer if such dependent person is under eighteen years of age or is incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective;

"The credits allowed by the subdivisions of this section shall be determined by the status of the taxpayer on the last day of the period for which the return of income is made; but in the case of an individual who dies during the taxable year, such credits shall be determined by his status at the time of his death, and in such case full credits shall be allowed to the surviving spouse, if any, according to his or her status at the close of the period for which such survivor makes return of income."

MUTUAL BENEFIT READING CIRCLE BIRTHDAY

Sixth Anniversary to Be Celebrated Tomorrow by Its Members

Glendale's Mutual Benefit Reading Circle, an organization which has a national reputation because of the unique work it has been doing and its influence in establishing other bodies to follow the same line of instruction calculated to make women better mothers, will on Wednesday celebrate its sixth anniversary with its annual birthday party.

The only fly in the ointment is the possibility that the greatly beloved founder and mother for many years of the circle, Mrs. Charles H. Toll, may not be able to be present because of her arduous responsibilities in conjunction with the Los Angeles Ethel club of which she is president.

Mrs. Toll was a teacher in the public schools for several years before her marriage and then came to realize the helpless ignorance of many young mothers, of the things they should know in order to promote the development of their children physically, mentally and morally.

After she became a mother herself and the presiding genius of a beautiful home on Kenneth road, she organized this circle which met there every Wednesday morning at 10 a. m. and continued in session until 2 p. m. with an hour's interval for lunch. Systematic study and discussion of child welfare and development were inaugurated and have been steadily followed. The course now being prosecuted is that laid down by the national department at Washington where the Glendale circle ranks very high and is referred to as the model which the department is eager to have imitated in all parts of the country. When Mrs. Toll visited the capital a few years ago she was received and honored as a distinguished visitor.

The program for these birthday celebrations is generally prepared as a surprise for the members. This year it is in charge of Mrs. H. V. Henry, and Mrs. Vierick, both enthusiastic members, who will probably provide something unusual. It will be a social affair and a general good time, with party refreshments. It is hoped that every one of the 135 members will be present.
